

ambassador-designate in Washington, again urged Secretary Lansing to order evacuation, holding Villa's power broken. Secretary Lansing refused to consider this question while the Scott-Oregon conference are in progress.

Both General Obregon and Mr. Arredondo refused to consider any proposition to permit the stay of American troops in a neutral zone on the Mexican side while the Villa hunt is pressed by Obregon. They stood for unconditional withdrawal of troops.

The attitude taken by officials today is that withdrawal in the face of Obregon's "bluff" would have a harmful effect on both sides of the border. The concentration of 40,000 troops behind Obregon, if intended to influence the army's evacuation, apparently has failed of its purpose.

Pershing Handling Troops as in War

Massing Forces as Though Attack Imminent—Mud Holds Motor Trucks.

COLUMBUS, N. M., May 2.—General Pershing is concentrating and disposing his forces today as though an attack were imminent, and is massing them in the face of the mud which is holding the motor trucks.

With the Scott-Oregon conference hanging fire and the situation admitted tense, he is acting under actual war conditions. Every movement in the conference room is reported to the field commander by wireless.

Scattered columns have been drawn into an advanced base and additional defensive works constructed at several points. All troops at this base are held in readiness to move on short notice if necessary.

Four companies of infantry early today were preparing to march. It is believed orders have been received to cross the border to re-enforce the advanced lines. One machine gun company is also under orders to leave today.

A heavy delay in transportation of supplies is now confronting the military authorities. The mud, however, and thirty-five motor trucks, comprising five trains, were sunk deep in the mud near Ascension and Dublin during the night.

An unusually heavy rainfall made quagmires of the roads. The machines were making a very slow progress in getting up supplies. If the rain continues it will bring about a very serious situation.

The new 15-horsepower Curtiss aeroplanes will make their test flight today. With their greater power, it is expected they will make the altitude easily and will be sent to the front at once for scouting purposes.

$50 GIVEN TO FUND BY PATENT OFFICE

Collect Sum in Day By Passing Around Collection Box in the Office.

The Ippolito Fund

Contributions already received for the Ippolito Fund:

Previously acknowledged $490.50
 Maurice J. Colbert and employees 12.00
 Patient office 50.00
 Total $652.50

From the Patent Office in the shadow of which Policeman Ippolito risked his life to save that of a little child today came a check of $50 for the Ippolito fund.

All this was collected in a single day after one employee conceived the idea of sending around a paper box. Both from the employees of the Patent Office, from those in the Interior Department offices, and from patent attorneys around the building, the response was immediate. Only a few cents was asked and few of the contributions were for more than 50 cents.

"I know the Patent Office would be glad to respond, but I was surprised at the way they chipped in," said the man who carried the box around. "I believe if a similar collection were taken in other departments, the response would be an equally generous response. Many of our folk had known Ippolito, by sight, at least, and the others admired what they had heard of him, and his act of heroic self-sacrifice."

Fund Now $552.50.

Contributions today bring the fund for Ippolito up to $552.50.

The "unfailing courtesy" of Policeman Ippolito called forth a tribute, and $12, for the Ippolito fund, from Maurice J. Colbert and his employees.

The letter containing the check for $12 states:

"We have been in more or less close contact with Officer Ippolito and will always remember his unfailing courtesy. We feel that The Times is doing a noble work by its efforts in this case."

The Colbert establishment, where plumbing supplies are sold, is at 621 F street northwest.

Condition "Very Good."

At Emergency Hospital today it was stated that Ippolito's condition is "very good." It is not yet known when he will be operated upon. If he continues to improve, so that his strength will undergo the ordeal, the policeman may be operated on this afternoon.

A concerted movement among Italians of the city to raise a sum to add to the fund has taken definite shape, it is understood. Many Italians of the city were deeply interested in the letter of Joseph Schiavone, published in The Times, wherein was made an appeal to his countrymen to recognize the bravery of the policeman.

Stories of the courtesy and kindness that Ippolito showed toward the child with whom he came in contact are heard on all sides.

Flower of Washington Girlhood Taking Its Camp Life Seriously

By JEAN ELIOT.

"Cateburg"—perish the thought—and yet that is what confers have been mean enough to call this feminine adaptation of the Plattsburg idea, which is absorbing the attention of the flower of the girlhood of Washington and of various other important cities.

They'd take it all back, though, if they'd but take the trouble to journey out Chevy Chase way and see the National Service School in action. To be sure, yesterday there was a bit of chatter in the lull as the "rookies" were drawn up waiting the arrival of the President.

"Now let's see, 'right face' means turn to the right, doesn't it?" and, "Oh, how do you come to attention?" varied by an occasional "How do you manage to get your hat down over your back hair? I can't possibly do it."

But when the order came to "about face" and gather about the President's feet, they marched up in orderly array.

With only a half day's training, the recruits made a fine showing, and they are displaying a keenness for hard work and a readiness to submit to the rigorous discipline which speaks well for the seriousness with which they regard the undertaking.

In Trig Uniforms.

At the very entrance Miss Frances Moore and Mrs. William A. Slater, jr., in trig khaki uniforms, stood guard sternly turning away those who were not entitled to admission through membership in the Navy League or on some other secure military basis.

They were backed up by Capt. Charles Lacy Hall, Lieut. William Henry Holcombe, and other officers of the Engineer Corps, who were detailed to help preserve order.

Within a whole flock of pretty girls, "officers of the day" under the leadership of Capt. Dorothea Denys, helped manage the crowd. Their uniforms were set off by red sashes.

Of course the President's address was interesting and of course it was pleasant to get a good view of Mrs. Wilson in her new spring flimsy; but I found my patriotism cooling out as the heels of the recruits for an hour or more in the broiling sun. And it speaks well for the stamina and the spirit of the girls that they stood in unbroken ranks and listened with real enthusiasm.

But after the signal came to "break ranks," the girls withdrew to the military tent, and the camp took on the air of a garden party. The little ladies in khaki were hostesses, half Washington society, half military, and the officers, personages, were the guests, and he it whispered that many a beau was allowed a peep at the interior of the tent where the recruits are housed by day.

Reception in Tents.

In several tents there was a bit of a reception. Little Miss Slater and one of the girls who is quartered with her, had a visit from half a dozen young diplomats, among them Thomas Spring-Rice, of the British embassy, who chattered volubly in French. A suspicious looking, long-necked bottle, protruding from an ice-filled bucket attracted no little attention, but proved to contain nothing stronger than Poland water. Miss Frances Williams was "at home" to her mother, Mrs. John R. Williams, her sisters, Mrs. Joseph Letter, and Mrs. William F. McCombs, and several attentive young men, who took advantage of "visitors' day" to pay their respects.

Mrs. McCombs had on a gay sweater suit of blue and white stripes, with a little blue hat to match, which made striking contrast to the khaki costume of her sister.

I met Miss Corie Smith escorting Lyman Pratt about the grounds and Miss Lillian Hendrick in search of her mother.

Among the Visitors.

Mrs. John M. Speel was there, with her two daughters, Miss Lena Hitchcock and Katherine Hitchcock, both in uniform, and among the visiting girls were the Misses Delano, who had with them their cousins, the Misses Price of New York. The Collier girls, dark and striking in appearance, were dressed in the gayest possible colors. The smaller one, whose

 Season's Best Bargains
 Without Question

First place in point of value-giving has been conceded to the firm of Friedlander Bros., 428 Ninth street northwest, whose phenomenal sale of fashionable spring suits at $10 has been the subject of conversation in the city where well-dressed men congregate.

Notwithstanding the steady advance in the cost of materials and labor, or the dye shortage, it is your privilege to purchase a suit of the quality usually sold as high as $16.50 for only $10. The business foresight exercised by Friedlander Bros. has made this possible.

The season's latest and most approved styles are represented in the stock offered in this sale. Among these are Norfolk, semi-Norfolk, "Pinch Backs," etc. The materials include Worsteds, Casimeres, Cheviots, Serges, etc., in Blues, Browns, Grays, Silk Mixtures, Shepherd Plaids, Checks, Stripes, etc.

The man who is possessed of the notion that he cannot find a ready-to-wear suit to fit him is particularly invited to look over these suits, for the assortment is so varied that every man, no matter what his proportions or tastes, can find a suit precisely to his liking.

Naturally, in view of the unusual bargains offered, this sale cannot last long; hence, haste is necessary. Just step in at the store of Friedlander Bros., 428 Ninth street northwest, and ask to see those $10 Suits. —Adv.

BUGLER CALLS WOMEN TO FIRST DAY'S WORK

"Rookies" at Service Camp Go Through "Setting-up" Exercises First Thing.

To the mass sent, just after roll call, for breakfast.

This morning the girls faced a good deal better than their brothers, who have anxiously waited the arrival of the breakfast menu including ham and eggs, baked potatoes, coffee, milk and stewed prunes.

Call For Postal Cards.

From time out of mind young women prototypes of that original lassie "The Girl I Left Behind Me," have anxiously waited the arrival of postal cards from the camps to which their soldier boys have gone.

But there will be a reversal of this situation in the national service school camp, and a good many of the girls have already set up a cry for postal cards which can be mailed "back home."

Therefore, a large supply of the cards are being rushed to completion, showing the flag raising yesterday and general camp scenes.

None of the girls reported at "sick call" today and the general health of the camp is reported as being excellent.

All of the girl students are particularly enthusiastic over the speech of President Wilson delivered yesterday afternoon, at the formal flag-raising.

Like President's Speech.

The President's address of welcome voiced just the sort of patriotism that the national service school typifies, according to many of the women students. "The address was not of aggression but of preparedness."

"God forbid," said the President, "that the United States should be drawn into a war, but if we should be, the United States would seek no more to shake herself out of a dream, to say: 'Did any man deem we were asleep? Did any man deem we had forgotten the traditions of America? Did any man deem that he could tamper with the honor or the integrity of the United States?'"

"And in the great voice of national enthusiasm which would be raised, the world would be thrilled once more to hear the voice of the new world asserting the standards of justice and liberty."

The President again expressed his great faith in the loyalty of foreign-born Americans.

Has Warned of Dangers.

"If the present war has done nothing else, it has at least done this: It has made America aware of dangers which most of us had deemed unreal, and has made us aware that the danger of our own time is nothing less than the settlement of the foundations of civilization."

"Civilization does not rest upon war. It rests upon peace. It rests upon those things which men achieve by co-operation and mutual interest in one another. It does not flourish in the soil of hostility and antagonism, and a world war is a war in the presence of which civilization holds its breath and wonders if it will itself survive."

"As we see that great issues joined, we on this side of the water are done this great service: we are reminded of our spiritual relation not only to this great struggle, but particularly to this great nation of which we constitute parts, and our spiritual relation to the rest of the world is determined by our spiritual relations to America.

"You have heard a great deal about the hyphen. I for one have never been deceived. The number of persons of really divided allegiance in this country is very small, and if I had been born in some other country, I, for one, would resent the representations which have been made by those who were not the spokesmen of those for whom they pretended to speak in suggesting a divided allegiance. I have never had the slightest doubt of what would happen when America called upon those of her citizens born in other countries to come to the support of the flag."

"Why, they will come with cheers, they will come with a momentum which will make us realize that America has once more been aroused awake out of every sort of dissembler and dream and distraction, and that any man who dares tamper with the spirit of America and the great out of the confidence of a great nation upon the instant."

Believe that a certain spiritual regeneration is going to come out of this thing. We have been thinking too much about our individual selves and too little about the country of which we constitute a part, and one of the services which you ladies are going to render is to show how, upon no summons at all, upon the mere offering of the opportunity, women will come together to render those inestimable services which are necessary if the country sets into any sort of trouble."

The girls who are taking the national service school course "buckled down" with a will today, in the routine of the camp started off well.

At 7:30 o'clock the roll was called in the different company streets; "polishing" the camp, which in the military parlance simply means tidying up, followed at 8 o'clock, and sick call at 9 o'clock and the girls were kept in the classrooms until 12:30.

CITIZENS ATTACK FORUM MOVEMENT

Declaring that the community forum movement is a disguised plan to take the control of the schools away from the Board of the District Commission, speakers at the meeting of the North Washington Citizens' Association at the Gage School last night made vigorous attacks on the movement and the association of the community forum idea.

U. F. Worley, one of the principal opponents to the Sunday question resulting from the forum movement, declared that some people try to compare the community forum meetings to the old New England town meetings.

Prof. Ward, who is known as the leader of the community forum movement here was referred to as a "paid agitator" and a "lobbyist" by the speakers.

W. C. Arnette, who was a guest of the association, declared that if it had not been for the persistent efforts of Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, in the community forum movement, the Hollis-Johnson bill providing for the use of the District schools for community forum meeting places would have died in the house District Committee.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Adv.
